PREFACE

Never since the invention of printing has a selection of Type been submitted to printers so extensive as this—so unequaled in originality and effectiveness of design, with series so complete and so well manufactured. The Type Faces, Borders and Ornaments excel in design—which is the chief merit of type—and are cast in the justly celebrated Copper Alloy, the most durable of type metals. A printing office completely supplied with the products of this Company is worth far more for either use or sale than one made up from the productions of incomplete foundries. It is conceded that the Type manufactured by this Company is the standard for excellence throughout the world, and every endeavor is made to advance that standard. The realization of this endeavor has given our customers the best Type in the past, and insures for them the best in the future.

Roman and German Body Type is put up in fonts of 25, 50, 100 pounds, or some multiple of these weights. Included in each 25 pounds are 5 pounds of Spaces and Quads, and same proportion in larger fonts.

Italic and Accents will not be sent with Roman fonts unless specially ordered. Smallest font of Italic furnished weighs 5 pounds. A pair of cases holds 50 pounds of body type.

Allowance for Old Type and Other Metals

Old type (clean and unmixed with other metals), electrotypes, leads and brass, delivered at foundry, will be taken at current prices in exchange for new type or printing material.

Customers sending in old metal are requested to mark their names on all packages, and to forward by mail a shipping receipt or bill of lading, with the net weight of each kind of material, as soon as shipment is made. Compliance with this request will aid in identifying shipments, and prevent errors. Ship as "old metal" to secure low freight rate.

SPECIAL NOTICE.—Zinc plates, metal containing zinc, or type and other plates mixed with zinc plates, and stereotype plates, will not be received at any price. Type, electrotype plates, leads and brass must be packed separately, as the value of each differs.

DESCRIPTION OF SELF SPACING TYPE

THE common widths of book pages, miscellaneous jobs and newspaper columns are some number of Pica ems, therefore the Pica em is taken as the basis for Self Spacing type. The thinnest space in all fonts is some exact fraction of a Pica, and this fraction of Pica is called the unit of measure. All characters, spaces and quads in the font are made some exact multiple of this unit in width, so that the sizes of all faces will work perfectly together in the regular labor-saving measures. This unit of measure may be one-sixth, one-seventh, one-eighth, one-ninth, etc., of a Pica em, as may be desired, to produce condensed, medium or extended faces. The following table gives the sizes of bodies, units of measure, and lengths of alphabets. In the first column will be found the various sizes of bodies; in the second, the number of units contained in one em Pica, and in the third the measurements of a lower case alphabet in the ems of each particular body:

Any compositor can see that no combination of units can be made that will not come within a certain number of exact units of filling a line. If a line of matter lacks, it must lack one or more exact units.

Self Spacing type sets line for line with the ordinary Roman, where the lengths of the alphabets are the same.

Repeated experiments with the new type have shown that the average compositor gains about twenty-five per cent. in speed, with no trouble in justification whatever. In the matter of the correction of proofs the gain is enormous. Say there is an "a" for "e"; as "a" is four units wide and "e" three, "e" and one unit space justify the line perfectly. Even this measure of trouble is avoided in many instances. As twenty-eight of the most common lower case characters are of the same width, they can be substituted for one another without the change of a space.

This type is of greater durability, as it is always on its feet and is therefore not worn by "pounding."

In tabular work there is a great gain in speed and neatness. By the addition of a new character, viz: "l", it is easy to set perpendicular lines of any length, line upon line.

It may be repeated that the compositor has nothing to learn in Self Spacing type. There is but a single direction to be given—to set that which looks like the em quad (six unit quad) with the nick out.

Whoever will study the principle on which Self Spacing type is based, will readily admit that it is bound to secure easy and perfect justification, greatly increased speed and consequent enormous saving, simplicity and rapidity of proof correction, and increased accuracy and ease in the setting of

In the foregoing table will be found a Nonpareil with one-twelfth of Pica as the unit of measure. This is one-sixth of the body of Nonpareil, or the six-to-em space, and preserves in this particular font the old three-to-em space and the old en and em quads. The same is true of the Brevier on one-ninth, Bourgeois on one-eighth, and Pica on one-sixth of Pica.

In a complete font of the old kind of body type there are about 190 widths of bodies. Appended is a table showing the different widths of bodies of Self Spacing. It will be readily seen that there are but nine widths of bodies all told, and that the four-unit width predominates largely over any other, there being fifty-nine characters of this width. We omit the Italic characters from the table, as they go on the same widths of

Self Spacing Roman

PAT. DEC. 18, 1883

5¼ POINT SELF SPACING ROMAN NO 19¼

Unit of measure of this font is 12 to Pica

THE common widths of book pages, miscellaneous jobs and newspaper columns are some number of Pica ems, therefore the Pica em is taken as the basis for Self Spacing type. The thinnest space in fonts is some exact fraction of a Pica, and this fraction of Pica is called the unit of measure. All characters, spaces and quads in the font are made some exact multiple of this unit in width, so that the sizes of all faces will work perfectly together in the regular labor-saving measures. This unit of measure may be one-sixth, one-seventh, one-eighth, one-ninth, etc., of a Pica em, as may be desired, to produce condensed, medium or extended faces. A detailed description is printed in this Specimen Book. Self Spacing type sets line for line with the ordinary Roman, where the lengths of the alphabets are the same. Repeated experiments with the new type have shown that the average compositor gains about twenty-five per cent. in speed, with no trouble in justification whatever. In the matter of the correction of proofs the gain is enormous. Say there is an "a" for an "e"; as "a" is four units wide and "e" three, "e" and a one-unit space justify the line perfectly. Even this measure of trouble is avoided in many instances. As twenty-eight of the most common lower case characters are of the same width, they can be substituted for one another without the change of a space. This type is of greater durability as it is always on its feet and is therefore not worn by "pounding." In tabular work there is a great gain in speed and neatness. It may be repeated that the com-

Auf keinem Gebiete waren die Fortschritte seit vier Jahrhunderten so gering wie in der Kunst des Schriftsetzens. Die hier und da in Gebrauch befindlichen Maschinen sind durchaus unvollkommen; die bei weitem größte Masse der üblichen Schrift ist noch genau der Art wie vor vierhundert Jahren. Wenn Franklin heute wieder vor dem Kasten stände, würde er nichts Neues zu lernen haben. Die Schriftgießerei ist hinter der wunderbaren Vervollkommnung der Pressen vollständig zurückgeblieben; die vergrößerte Geschwindigkeit im Schriftsetzen beruht ausschließlich in der Vermehrung der Kästen. Alle Bemühungen, diesem Uebelstande abzuhelfen, gingen darauf hinaus, Setzmaschinen zu erfinden, statt die Art und Weise des Handsetzens zu verbessern. Eins der Haupthindernisse, welches den Setzmaschinen im Wege stand, ist die Nothwendigkeit, mit der Hand zu „justiren“. Daran scheiterte hauptsächlich die Einführung dieser Maschinen. Es liegt daher auf der Hand, daß jeder Plan zur Verbesserung unserer Setz-Methoden in erster Linie die Justirung zu vereinfachen hat, denn da dies der Punkt ist, um den sich die Sache dreht, so muß durch eine Vereinfachung des Ausschließens und Justirens die Leichtigkeit und Geschwindigkeit des Hand-Schriftsetzens wachsen. Dies geschieht durch Benton's selbst-ausschließende Schrift. Genau genommen, kann man nicht eigentlich von Selbst-Ausschließen sprechen, jedoch diese Arbeit ist durch die Erfindung so einfach und leicht geworden, daß der Ausdruck „Selbst-Ausschließung“ wohl berechtigt sein dürfte. Die Breiten von Buchseiten, vielen Druckarbeiten und Zeitungskolumnen belaufen sich auf eine gewisse Anzahl von Cicero ems und daher muß auch das Cicero em als die Basis für die selbst-ausschließende Schrift angenommen werden. Der allergeringste Raum bei allen Güssen ist ein genauer Bruchtheil von Cicero und dieser Bruchtheil wird die Maasheit genannt. Alle diese Schriften, Spalten und Quadrate im Satz bestehen aus einer bestimmten Mehrheit dieser Einheit, so daß alle Averse genau zusammenpassen. Diese Einheit kann ein Sechstel, ein Siebentel, ein Achtel, ein Zehntel, u. s. w., eines Cicero em sein, wie man will, um enge, mittlere oder weite Abdrücke zu erhalten. Jeder Setzer kann sehen, daß irgend eine Linie, welche mit selbst-ausschließender Schrift gesetzt werden mag, aus einer bestimmten Anzahl von Einheiten bestehen muß. Es liegt daher auf der Hand, daß jeder Plan zur Verbesserung unserer Setz-Methoden in erster Linie die Justirung zu vereinfachen hat, denn da dies der Punkt ist, um den sich die Sache dreht, so muß durch eine Vereinfachung des Ausschließens und Justirens die Leichtigkeit und Geschwindigkeit des Hand-Schriftsetzens wachsen. Dies geschieht durch Benton's selbst-ausschließende Schrift. Genau genommen, kann man nicht eigentlich von Selbst-Ausschließen sprechen, jedoch diese Arbeit ist durch die Erfindung so einfach und leicht geworden, daß der Ausdruck „Selbst-Ausschließung“ wohl berechtigt sein dürfte. Die hier und da in Gebrauch befindlichen Maschinen sind durchaus unvollkommen; die bei weitem größte Masse der üblichen Schrift ist noch genau der Art wie vor vierhundert Jahren. Wenn Franklin heute wieder vor dem Kasten stände, würde er nichts Neues zu lernen haben. Die Schriftgießerei ist hinter der wunderbaren Vervollkommnung der Pressen vollständig zurückgeblieben; die vergrößerte Geschwindigkeit im Schriftsetzen beruht ausschließlich in der Vermehrung der Kästen. Alle Bemühungen diesem Uebelstande abzuhelpfen, gingen garauf hinaus, Setzmaschinen zu erfinden, statt die Art und Weise des Handsetzens zu verbessern. Eins der Haupthindernisse, welches den Setzmaschinen im Wege stand, ist die Nothwendigkeit, mit der Hand zu „justiren“. Daran scheiterte hauptsächlich die Einführung dieser Maschinen. The thinnest space in all fonts is some exact fraction of a Pica, and this fraction of Pica is called the unit of measure. All characters, spaces and quads in the font are made some exact multiple of this unit in width, so that the sizes of all faces will work perfectly together in the regular labor-saving measures. This unit of measure may be one-sixth, one-seventh, one-eighth, one-ninth, etc., of a Pica em, as may be desired, to produce condensed, medium or extended faces. A detailed description is printed in this Specimen Book. Self Spacing type sets line for line with the ordinary Roman, where the lengths of the alphabets

THE oldest type-printing containing an authentic date is a Letter of Indulgence dated 1454, in which the date is written in. The oldest type-printing containing an authentic printed date is the Psalter of 1457, which bears the imprint of John Fust of Mentz and Peter Schœffer of Gernszheim. We also know of a Latin Bible, in folio, forty-two lines to the page, in double columns, one copy of which contains the written statement of the illuminator that his work on the book was finished at Mentz in the year 1456. There is another edition of a Latin Bible in double columns, thirty-six lines to the page, which was probably done before 1459. All these pieces of printing are correlated. The types are of different sizes, but of marked resemblance as to cut or style. We shall not here discuss the relative claims of Fust and Schœffer to the invention. It is enough to say that it is the general belief that these books are the work, separately or jointly, of Gutenberg, Fust, and Schœffer; and that they were "made by a new and unheard-of art," or, as the Psalter of 1457 explicitly states, "by the masterly invention of printing and also of type-making." In this notice, as in other notices by early writers, we find the implication that the real invention of printing was the invention of practical types. One of these books, the Bible of forty-two lines, is emphatically The Book, not because it is the Bible and to be regarded as the Book of Books, but because it is generally regarded as the first printed book. It is not only the typographic editio princeps of what had been a manuscript

A COMPOSITOR, unless he is a natural genius, should spend long years in study and patient practice, cultivating his taste and strengthening his judgment, before he enters far into the domain of original designing, if he wishes to give better satisfaction to his employers and to the customers of his employers. New beginners often bring forth new designs, never known before and which no one would probably ever wish to see again, at a marvellous speed. But in this, as in everything else, the farther they advance the more careful they are of their opinions and ideas as authority for those whom they consider their inferiors in all respects. Newness, however, should not be their sole thought, unless they know that they can improve upon that which already exists in the same department. A new thing without merit is worse than an old thing worn threadbare. An entirely original piece of composition is an almost unknown production, when we consider the word original to mean the bringing into existence that which was unknown before. Original ideas are not so plenty

IT IS an evidence of a growing desire on the part of those interested in printing to see it more worthily filling the exalted position for which it was surely destined. But when we take into consideration the long line of years throughout which our craft has suffered the depleting influences of those who have gone into it to make money, and that quickly, we must be prepared for a somewhat arduous task in our endeavor to right it again. (It is hardly likely with such an accumulation of evils as have been heaped upon us.) Let us have patience. Rome was not built in a day, yet it did not take old Nero much longer than that to reduce it to ashes. Again let us have patience. Who knows but that out of the ashes which already seem to be faintly burning, our

SO MUCH has been said about artistic printing that, at the first blush, one would naturally come to the conclusion that all that could be said had been said. Yet it is not so. We can scarcely open a trade organ without seeing something, either good, bad or indifferent, on the subject. In fact our daily and weekly newspapers and literary journals must also have their say, with an amount of freshness that betokens "a few more words." As yet, there seems no likelihood of arriving at a very speedy

WHEN grief falls heavy on thee,
Or boding ills alarm,
Fear not to lean upon me—
Then, brother! take my arm.
There's many a carking trouble
That taketh two to bear,
And one would bend quite double
Beneath so sore a care.

If malice, in its rancor,
Has sought thy mortal harm,
My shoulder be thine anchor—
Here, brother! take my arm.
Though all, in time of trial,
May turn their look away—
Nay, brother! no denial—
My arm shall be thy stay.

If grief were mine to-morrow,
A grief but love could charm,
I'd cry, amid the sorrow,
Good brother! give thine arm.
'Tis Christlike when another
That sinking cry shall heed;
For man to man's a brother
More truly when in need.

It is related that about this time he encountered Binny in an ale-house; their acquaintance ripened into a friendly intimacy, and they soon learned each other's views and prospects. The result was that a copartnership was formed between them, beginning Nov. 1, 1796, establishing the first permanent type-foundry in this country. Ronaldson contributed the greater portion of the capital, and took charge of the financial part of the enterprise. Binny, who was a practical type-founder, and at one time had carried on the business at Edinburgh, contributed his tools, stock of metal, and types, and assumed control of the mechanical department. The connection proved advantageous to each party, and a prosperous business was the result. American printers, who had up to this time relied on British founders for their type, patronized the new establishment, and, to quote the words of Ronaldson, "the importation of foreign type ceased in proportion as Binny & Ronaldson became known to the printers of the United States." The type-founding tools and material, which Benjamin Franklin had brought with him from France for his own convenience in casting sorts, came into possession of the firm in 1806. After Dr. Franklin's death, they became the property of Mr. Duane, a relative of the philosopher, who, justly appreciating the true ardor with which Messrs. Binny & Ronaldson endeavored to succeed, offered them the loan of these tools. After an examination of them by Ronaldson, he was so much pleased with the superiority of a number of them over their own, and fearing that Mr. Duane might change his

Shortly after his arrival he renewed his acquaintance with Archibald Binny, whom he had formerly known when living in Scotland. For a year or two after his arrival in this country Ronaldson carried on a biscuit bakery. His establishment was destroyed by fire in 1796; by this disaster he found himself out of an occupation. It is related that about this time he encountered Binny in an ale-house; their acquaintance ripened into a friendly intimacy, and they soon learned each other's views and prospects. The natural result was a copartnership was formed by them, beginning Nov. 1, 1796, establishing the first permanent type-foundry in the United States. Ronaldson furnished the greater part of the capital, and assumed control of the financial branch of the business. Binny, who was a practical type-founder, and had carried on the business in Edinburgh, contributed his tools, stock of metal, and types, and took

TWICE I received a wholesome castigation
 For stealing to the Battery to play
 Without parental leave and approbation—
 I'll not forget it to my latest day.
 I told a rather hesitating story,
 Not quite in keeping with my course in youth;
 It may have been a crooked allegory,
 And did not run in straight lines with the truth.
 I bless the rod, and bless the hand that wielded,
 Although it made my youthful shoulders tickle.

PRECEPTS IMPARTED TO THE MASTER AS WELL AS THE APPRENTICE

LECTURE ON THOROUGHNESS

Thoroughness in printing offices is an accomplishment that is often neglected by those who are learning and by those who are practicing the principles contained in our high and noble calling. While it is true that much is left to the taste and judgment of the workman, and much of his success depends upon the cultivation of taste and exercise of judgment, it is also true that there are numerous important fixed rules and principles that no sensible printer will care to ignore; and if he does run counter to them he does so at his own risk, and in the end will be more harmed than benefited by his own stubbornness or ignorance. Most printers, who set themselves up as original and artistic printers, are original botches, and they continue to hold their own through life, or until some accident or combination of circumstances forces them to see their weakness, when, if they are not too proud and conceited, they may, by patient industry and perseverance, hope to become workmen of ordinary ability, and spend the remainder of their days in quiet usefulness. Artistic workmen are few indeed. If a person has enough artistic ability to be able at all times to create forms of beauty and symmetry that will be the wonder of his less fortunate neighbors, he can always find employment more remunerative. "Whatever is worth doing at all, is worth doing well," is a maxim that few follow because many do not know how. Cheap Printing may serve a cheap man, but

SOME ANNOYING HABITS POSSESSED BY THE SLOUCHY PRINTER

COMMENT ON THE SLOUCH

A number of interesting experiments are performed by compositors in the several processes of setting, correcting and distributing type, that may be justly classified outside the pale of typographic tolerance. As long as the offender is unnoticed or not discovered in his mean habits, just so long will he continue to exercise them. These practices, as we all know, are confined only to the more incompetent, or to the workman who is intentionally slovenly. They mark his course at every turn in the office, and require little investigation to establish their rightful originator. What a source of annoyance it is to the careful man to lift a handful of matter for distribution and find it plentifully interlarded with bent spaces. This is the lazy man or slouch graphically illustrated. A bent space might accidentally occur in the matter, and such a fact might happen more than once and be forgiven; but where the premeditated reminder of so much careless and slouchy spacing comes into the hands of careful printers who use their best

THE EVILS THAT BESET THE PRINTERS WHO GET LOW PRICES

LOW-PRICED JOB WORK

It has been said that there is less profit in the printing business, for the amount of capital invested and the amount of energy required, than in most other lines of business. There is considerable truth in this without a doubt; though, in a great measure the fact of its possessing any truth is more attributable to the loose methods that some printers resort to, than to anything essentially necessary to and in fact forming a part of the business itself. It is due to abuses which have grown up within the business, and are tolerated by those engaged in it, that it has become unprofitable. Take, for instance, the system of daily soliciting of estimates as practiced by stationers everywhere. Many people, through convenience or friendship, give their orders for printing to their stationers. Use printers' ink applied by me, and you will never meet the sheriff with a red flag.

A CLASS OF MEN WHO NEED ALL THE CUFFS THEY GET SCORING THE PRINTER

Does the printer read up in his profession as thoroughly as he should? I should say not. It is a deplorable fact, but nevertheless true, that, as a class, the printers of this country do not keep read up on the subject of printing to any extent. Where you find one that does, you will find a dozen that do not. In this day every office in the land is kept supplied with all manner of craft journals, specimen sheets of late faces, and numberless circulars describing new inventions and novelties made for the use of the printer; yet but very few avail themselves of these opportunities to extend their knowledge of the art that gains them a living. More offices than one in the country have dozens of printers in their employ not one of whom ever reads a craft publication. These men work day after day, simply following furrow after furrow, like a horse dragging a plow, with no object before them except longing for dinner-time or supper-time, or Sunday. And yet these men are to be called printers. Two small heads are better than one "big head" in the work shop.

THE ORIGIN OF ROMAN TYPES, WITH CHANGES BEFORE AND AFTER REACHING ENGLAND.

THE Italian scribes of the fifteenth century were famous for their beautiful manuscripts, written in a hand entirely different from the Gothic of the Germans, or the Secretary of the French and Netherlands calligraphers. It was only natural that the first Italian printers, when they set up their press at Subiaco, should form their letters upon the best model of the national scribes. The Cicero de Oratore of 1465 is claimed by some as the first book printed in Roman type, although the character shows that the German artists who printed it had been unable wholly to shake off the traditions of the pointed Gothic school of typography in which they had learned their craft. The type of the Lactantius, and the improved type of the works subsequently printed by Sweynheim and Pannartz at Rome, as well as those of Ulric Hahn, were, in fact, Gothic-Romans; and it was not till Nicholas Jenson, a Frenchman, in 1470, printed his Eusebii Praeparatio at Venice, that the true Roman appeared in Italy, which was destined to become the ruling character in European Typography. Fournier and others have considered that Jenson derived his Roman letter from a mixture of alphabets of various countries; but it is only necessary to compare the Eusebius with the Italian manuscripts of the period, to see that no such elaborate selection of models was necessary or likely. Jenson's font is on a body corresponding to English. The font is round and clear, and differing in fashion only from its future progeny. The capital alphabet consists of twenty-three letters (J, U, and W not being yet in use); the lower case alphabet is the same except that the u is substituted for the v, and in addition there is a long i, and the diphthongs. To complete the font, there are fifteen contractions, six double letters, and three points, the . : ? making seventy-three punches in all. Jenson's Roman letter fell after his death into the hands of a firm of which Andrea Torresani was head. Aldus Manutius subsequently associated himself with Torresani, and, becoming his son-in-law and heir, eventually inherited his punches, matrices, and types. The Roman fonts of Aldus were eclipsed by his Italic and Greek, but he cut several fine alphabets. Renouard mentions eight distinct fonts between 1494 and 1558. Roman type was adopted before 1473 by Mentelin of Strasburg, whose beautiful letter placed him in the front rank of the German printers. Gunther Zainer, who settled at Augsburg in 1469, after printing some works in the round Gothic, also adopted, in 1472, the Roman of the Venetian School, fonts of which he is said to have brought direct from Italy. The German name of Antiqua, applied to the Roman character, has generally been supposed to imply a reluctance to admit the claim of Italy to the credit of introducing this style of letter. As, however, the Italians themselves called the letter the Lettera Antiqua tonda, the imputation against Germany is unjust. The French, Dutch, and English called it Roman.

ROMAN CHARACTERS THE FIRST TYPES USED
IN FRANCE, IN THE YEAR 1470. ❁❁❁❁❁❁❁❁

FRANCE received printing and the Roman character at the same time, the first work of the Sorbonne press in 1470 being in a handsome Roman letter about Great Primer in size, with a slight suggestion of Gothic in some of the characters. Gering, a German himself, and his associates, had learned their art at Basle, but cut, and probably designed, their own letter on the best available models. Their font is rudely cast, so that several of their words appear only half-printed in the impression, and have been finished by hand. It has been stated erroneously, by several writers, on the authority of Chevillier, that their font was without capitals. The font is complete in that respect, and Chevillier's expression, "lettres capitales," as he himself explains, refers to the initial letters for which blank spaces were left to be filled in by hand. Besides the ordinary capital and lower-case alphabets, the font abounds in abbreviations. This letter was used in all the works of the Sorbonne press, but when Gering left the Sorbonne and established himself at the Soleil d'Or, in 1473, he made use of a Gothic letter. In his later works, however, new and greatly improved fonts of the Roman appear. Jodocus Badius, who by some is erroneously supposed to have been the first who brought the Roman letters from Italy to France, did not establish his famous Prelum Ascensianum in Paris till about 1500, when he printed in Roman types—not, however, before one or two other French printers had already distinguished themselves in the introduction of printing from the adopted Roman characters. The French quickly recognized the opportunities of printing, but were slow in improving the shapes of the Roman letter.

ROMAN WAS FIRST USED IN THE
NETHERLANDS ABOUT 1472. ❀❀❀

ROMAN was introduced into the Netherlands by Johannes de Westfalia, who, it is said, brought it from Italy in the year 1472. He located at Louvain, and after a number of works in semi-Gothic, published in 1483 an edition of Aeneas Silvius in the Italian letter. His font is elegant, and rather a lighter face than most of the early Roman fonts of other countries. This printer appears to have been the only one in the Low Countries who used this type during the fifteenth century; nor was it till Plantin, in 1555, established his famous press at Antwerp, that the Roman attained to any degree of excellence. But Plantin, and after him the Elzevirs, were destined to eclipse all other artists in their execution of this letter, which in their hands became a model for the typography of all civilization. It should be mentioned, however, that the Elzevirs are not supposed to have cut their own punches. The Roman types which they made famous, and which are known by their name, were cut by Christopher Van Dijk, the form of whose letter was subsequently adopted by English printers with only a few immaterial changes.

SWITZERLAND distinguished itself by the Roman letter of Amerbach of Basle, and still more so by the beautiful fonts used by Froben of the same city, who between 1491 and 1527 printed some of the finest books then known in Europe. Christopher Froschouer of Zurich, about 1545, made use of a peculiar and not unpicturesque form of the Roman letter, in which the round sorts were thickened, after the Gothic fashion, at their opposite corners, instead of at their opposite sides. ❖ ❖ ❖

FIRST INTRODUCED IN ENGLAND.

THE Roman was first introduced in England in 1518 by Richard Pynson. This printer's Norman birth, and his close relationship with the typographers of Rouen, together with his supposed intimacy with the famous Basle typographer Froben, make it highly probable that he procured his letter abroad, or modelled it on that of some of the celebrated foreign printers of his day. The font, though neat and bold in appearance, displays considerable irregularity in the casting, and has many contractions. ❖

THE Roman made its way rapidly in English typography during the first half of the sixteenth century, and in the hands of such artists as Faques, Rastell, Wyer, Berthelet, and Day, maintained an average excellence. But it rapidly degenerated, and while other countries were dazzling Europe by the brilliancy of their impressions, the English Roman letter went from good to bad, and from bad to worse. While Claude Garamond in France was carrying into noble practice the theories of the form and proportion of letters set out by his master, Geofroy Tory; while the Estiennes at Paris, Sebastian Gryphe at Lyons, Froben at Basle, Froschouer at Zurich, and Christopher Plantin at Antwerp, were moulding their alphabets into models that were to become classical, English printers, manacled body and soul by their patents and monopolies and state persecutions, achieved nothing with the Roman type that was not retrograde. For a time a struggle appears to have existed between the Black-letter and the Roman for the mastery of the English press, and at one period the curious spectacle was presented of mixed fonts of the two. ❁ ❁ ❁ ❁ ❁ ❁ ❁ ❁ ❁ ❁

The poetical temperament of Columbus is discernible throughout his writings, and in all his actions. It spread a golden and glorious world around him, and tinged everything with its own gorgeous colors. It betrayed him into visionary speculations, which subjected him to the sneers and cavillings of men of cooler and safer but more grovelling minds. Such were the opinions formed on the coast of Paria, about the form of the earth, and the situation of the terrestrial paradise; about the mines of Ophir, in Hispaniola, and of the Aurea Chersonesus, in Veragua; and such was the heroic scheme of the crusade for the recovery of the holy sepulchre. It mingled with his religion, and filled his mind with solemn and visionary meditations on mystic passages of the scriptures, and the shadowy portents of the prophecies. It exalted his office in his eyes, and made him conceive himself an agent sent upon a sublime and awful mission, subject to impulses and supernatural visions from the Deity; such as the voice he imagined spoke to him in comfort, amidst the troubles of Hispaniola, and in the silence of the night, on the disastrous coast of Veragua. The faculty of memory, which receives and retains ideas and images, and which exhibits them again with or without the exercise of volition, early became the subject of philosophical research. There are very many curious phenomena connected with this power of the mind; it is sometimes as recreant to its trust, when most its service may be required, as the veriest bankrupt; at other times, when in a fit of strange caprice, it will obtrude upon us in a most unwelcome and unceremonious manner, heaping upon us thoughts and things we would willingly bury in oblivion. Yet, after all, memory is indispensable to moral economy; its aid is as much required in things mean as in things immense. Without this mysterious private secretary, we could not enact our several parts on the arena of life; our boasted being would be reduced to a mere vegetable existence. Memory is said to be essential to every kind of action; timid animals are instigated to avoid capture, and to flee from the attacks of the very ferocious, more from the remembrance of the consequences of previous sufferings than from what we are accustomed to call instinct. It is recorded that on the first discovery of the Falkland Islands, hares and foxes, as well as birds, quietly suffered themselves to be taken. If a dog, for example, is well punished for an offence, he is not likely often to repeat the act. We can only speak of the function as an attribute of mind in metaphors; such as the tablets of memory, a storehouse of ideas, and the like; but the thing is intangible and inconceivable as to its nature. Memory seems to require an increase of its retentive power over the objects derivable through the senses of sight, sound, and touch; for example, a cherished form and face, the accents of a voice we have loved, a magnificent landscape, or a superb structure, make a deep

CENTURY ROMAN

8 POINT

THE first number of The Century appeared in a modernized old-style type, which was then something of a novelty. It had never been used in any similar publication, and it gave distinction to the page. It had authority in its favor, as the outgrowth of a style (shown on pages 96f-96h, of the specimen book), introduced by WILLIAM CASLON of London about 1720, and then so pleasingly cut that it broke down every attempt at rivalry. For seventy years it was commended as incomparably the best cut of type, but it went out of fashion. At the beginning of the present century readers complained of its angularity and grayness.

THEY demanded new styles, and the type-founders provided them in profusion: the Thorne fat-face of prodigious blackness; the Didot round-face, not quite as black or fat-faced; the Bodoni, with round letters and sharp hair-lines; the French poetic face, compressed to the extreme of tenuity; the so-called Scotch-face (devised by the late S. N. DICKINSON of Boston, who established the Dickinson Type Foundry, the Boston Branch of the American Type Founders' Company, although first cut in Edinburgh); and the skeleton light-face, with its razor-edged hair-lines and needle-like pointed stems, fashionable during the first part of century

WHEN PICKERING and WHITTINGHAM revived the CASLON Old-Style, in 1850, using the identical matrices of the old master, the connoisseurs said, "Now at last we have returned to simplicity and beauty: this is perfection." Yet it was admired by bibliophiles only; dainty readers did not approve of its angular letters and its disproportioned capitals. Accepted for reprints of old books, it was rejected for modern work. To make it palatable to the general reader, type-founders devised a "modernized old-style," in which harsh features were modified and new features of greater delicacy were added. So changed, it became a more salable letter, but it never found marked favor with the ordinary newspaper or the book publisher. Critics said of it (too severely, we think) that the strong features of the Caslon face had been suppressed, and that the new features were no improvement; that it had been made lighter, sharper, and broader, until its true character had been cut to pieces.

ABCDEFGHIJKLMNQRSTU VWXYZ — $1234567890

BIBLIOPHILES still prefer the cut of CASLON; with all its admitted faults, it is blacker, clearer, and more readable. The average reader rejects the angularities of the old and the new cut, and prefers the symmetry of types of modern fashion. In the bewildering variety of faces devised during this century, one peculiarity, the sharp hair-line (a fashion introduced by BODONI and DIDOT, in imitation of the delicate lines of the copper-plate printer), has never been changed. When printing was done upon wet paper, against an elastic blanket, the hair-line was necessarily thickened by its impress against the yielding paper, which over-lapped the sides of every line. Under this treatment the hair-line appeared thicker in print than in type, and was unobjectionable to printer or reader; but when the new method began (as it did in 1872) of printing on dry and smooth paper against an inelastic surface

MR. THEODORE L. DEVINNE ON THE CENTURY ROMAN.

(From The Century, March, 1896.)

[NOTE.—This series of modern Roman type was cut by the American Type Founders' Company for The Century, in accordance with the suggestions and under the supervision of Mr. THEODORE L. DEVINNE, the eminent printer of that magazine. The punches were cut on the Benton punch-cutting machine from one set of drawings. A very complete line of accents has been added to meet the requirements of high-class book and magazine work.]

A GREAT change has taken place in the taste of readers, who have wearied of light types and gray impressions. There is an unmistakable demand for bold and stronger print. American type-founders recently introduced several styles of bold and black letter—for publishers and advertisers, as well as for bibliophiles. The "Jenson," "Monotone," and the "DeVinne" are in high favor with all, not for their novelty of form, but for their greater legibility. With these evidences before them of a general preference for bolder types, the publishers of The Century decided that they would swim with the tide, and have types of larger face and thicker hair-lines. According to old rules, Roman types would be bolder and more readable when made larger and wider. Experiments made with broad letters proved that increased expansion did not always secure increased legibility. The broad and round faces which seemed so beautiful in large-margined pages of Bodoni and Didot were not all beautiful (quite the reverse) when printed in double columns on a page with narrow margins. To use types in which the thick strokes of each type are unduly spread apart on a page with narrow margins is an incongruity that cannot be justified. When margins are ample, and space is not pinched, types may be broad and even expanded. When the page is over-full, the types should be compressed to suit the changed condition. The fault of over-broad type is most noticed in books of poetry, in which the narrowness of the measure compels an overturning and mangling of lines, a waste of space, and needless irritation to the reader. Experiment proved that a book-type moderately compressed and properly cut was as readable as round or expanded type. Compressed types, first made in Holland in 1732, ever since have been more largely used than types of any other cut by the printers of France and southern Europe. In dictionaries and books of two or more columns to the page, the compressed face is a necessity. The slightness of the compression in this new face will be perceived at a glance in a comparison of the alphabets of the old and of the new face as here submitted.

The new face is as wide as the old; it has as much open space within as without each letter, and just as many letters to the line; it has the greater clearness of a thickened hair-line. It seems to be compressed only because it is taller, but this increase of height amounts to only sixty-five ten-thousandths ($\frac{65}{10000}$) of an inch.

The story of the designing of this face is too full of technical detail to interest the casual reader. Only a maker of instruments of precision can appreciate the subservient tools, gauges, and machines that show aberrations of a ten-thousandth part of an inch; only an expert punch cutter can understand why minute geo-

Has he a turn for reading? Is he under fifteen years of age? A true affirmative answer to all these queries will entitle him to the position of reading and errand boy. He is told the hours at which he is to come and go, and a strict punctuality is enjoined upon him. He sweeps the room,—he sorts out the pi,—he learns the position of the various letters in the case. A year spent in this way is an excellent preparative for going to case, or learning the art of composing type. When he is put to composition, he is told to set up one line and show it to the foreman or to the journeyman under whose care he may be placed. The errors in the line are pointed out to him, and he is required to correct them himself. When the words are perfectly correct, he justifies the line tight enough to prevent it from falling down when the composing-stick is slightly inclined, and yet sufficiently EXPERIENCE proves that the apprentice foreshadows the workman, just as surely as the bend of the twig foretells the inclination of the tree. The upright, obedient, industrious lad will graduate a steady, skilful, and capable man, as unmistakably as the perverse, idling, careless boy will ripen into a lazy, dissolute fellow. The fact is, a boy is measurably the maker of his own destiny; and if he fails to acquire a master-knowledge of the trade to which he is put, it will mainly be because he did not at his outset determine to be a master-workman. Good morals and steady industry are indispensable. When a lad who possesses these qualities proposes to learn the art and mystery of printing, it should be inquired of him, Has he had a fair common-school education? Is he a perfect speller? Has he a turn for reading? Is his eyesight good? Is he under fifteen years of age? A true affirmative answer to all these queries will entitle him to the position of reading and errand boy. He is told the hours at which he is to come and go, and a strict punctuality is enjoined upon him. He sweeps the room,—he sorts out the pi,—he learns the position of the various letters in the case. A year spent in this way is an excellent preparative for going to case, or learning the art of composing type. When he is put to composition, he is told to set up one line and show it to the foreman or to the journeyman under whose care he may be placed. The errors in the line are pointed out to him, and he is required to correct them himself. When the words are perfectly correct, he justifies the line tight enough to prevent it from falling down when the composing-stick is slightly inclined, and yet sufficiently loose to enable him to lift it out with ease. In thus spacing out the line, the blanks between the words must be so graduated that, when the matter is printed, all the words will appear at equal distances apart. No matter how impatient he may be to get on, he must be drilled at this exercise till he becomes a thorough master of it. The grand doctrine to be instilled into him at first is, to do his work well and correctly; swiftness will follow as a natural consequence. He sets a second line; and after

Good morals and steady industry are indispensable. When a lad who possesses these qualities proposes to learn the art and mystery of printing, it should be inquired of him, Has he had a fair common-school education? Is he a perfect speller? Has he a turn for reading? Is his eyesight good? Is he under fifteen years of age? A true affirmative answer to all these queries will entitle him to the position of reading and errand boy. He is told the hours at which he is to come and go, and a strict punctuality is enjoined upon him. He sweeps the room,—he sorts out the pi,—he learns the position of the various letters in the case. A year spent in this way is an excellent preparative for going to case, or learning the art of composing type. When he is put to composition, he is told to set up one line and show it to the foreman or to the journeyman under whose care he may

MAY AMONG NEW ENGLAND HILLS

I love to look on these young faces, and see the firstlings of a young man's beard, and the maidenly bloom blushing over the girl's fair cheek; I love to see the pure eyes beaming with joy and goodness, to see the unconscious joy of such young souls impatient of restraint, and longing for the heaven that we fashion here. TIME IS THE CRADLE OF HOPE

It constantly flies, yet overcomes all things by flight; and although it is the present ally, it will be the future conquerer of Death. Time, the cradle of Hope, but the grave of Ambition, is the stern corrector of Fools, but the salutary counselor of the Wise, bringing all they dread to the one, and all they desire to the other; but, like Cassandra, it warns us with a voice that even the sagest discredit too long, and the silliest believe too late. Wisdom walks before it, Opportunity with it, 9054

OLD BOOKS BURIED BY THE ACCUMULATION OF THE NEW

THE destroyer fulfills his commission by burying books under the pyramid which is formed by their accumulation. It is a striking example of the impotence with which man struggles against the destiny which awaits him and his works. The very means he takes to insure immortality destroys it. The activity of the press, by which he seemed to have taken pledges against time and fortune, is that

PERILS OF COLUMBUS ON HIS VOYAGE OF DISCOVERY TO THE WESTWARD

INDICATIONS of approaching land became more certain, and excited hopes in proportion. The birds began to appear in flocks, making towards the southwest. Columbus, in imitation of Portuguese navigators who had been guided in several of their discoveries by motion of birds, altered his course from due west toward that quarter whither they pointed their flight. But, after holding on for several days in this new direction, without any better success than formerly, having seen no object during thirty days but the sea and sky, the hopes of his companions

SAILORS LOSE HEART AND WANT COLUMBUS TO TURN ABOUT AND SAIL FOR EUROPE

DESPAIR, impatience and rage appeared in every countenance. All sense of subordination was lost, and a scene of confusion ensued. The officers who had previously concurred with Columbus in opinion, and supported his authority, took part with the private seamen, and they assembled tumultuously on the deck, expostulated with their commander, mingled threats with their expostulations, and wanted him to tack about and return to Europe, which he was loth to do. Columbus perceived that it would be of no avail to have recourse to any of his former arts, which, having been tried so often, had now lost their effect and that it was impossible to rekindle any zeal for the success of the expedition among men in whose breasts

THE pages of early books were either large or small folios, but sometimes quartos, and were therefore cumbrous and unhandy. • Aldus Manuccio, of Venice, was the first to introduce the

CAXTON was over sixty years of age when The Dictes was printed, and was noted for his industrious habit. • He was possessed of good sense and sound judgment; persevering, zealous, and liberal in his devices for that important art which he introduced into England, laboring not only as printer, but as author and translator. • The productions of his press amount to sixty-four

16 A 50 a $2 75

GAUST took Schœffer into partnership, and the Bible and Psalter, and other important works were produced. • Schœffer was further rewarded by the hand of the grand-daughter of Faust. • From this rapid summary we may conclude: 1. That the merit of the invention of printing, however rude it may have been, belongs to Koster of Haarlem; 2. That Gutenberg placed the art on a permanent foundation; and 3. That its economical application was insured

8 POINT

18 A 52 a $2 50

Gutenberg continued printing at Strasburg until the year 1444, when, his means being exhausted, he rejoined his uncle at Mentz. Here he renewed his experiments, and, as he needed financial assistance, secured an introduction to John Faust, a money-lender and capitalist, who was favorably struck

6 POINT

20 A 60 a $2 25

The credit of inventing the art which perpetuates the history and achievements of all the arts and sciences has been obstinately contested, several cities having advanced rival claims to the honor of the discovery. This, however, should be no matter of surprise when we consider that the inventor of any new art, unprotected by law, would naturally endeavor to conceal its process for his own use and advantage. • After due consideration, we heartily agree with Tsaiah Thomas

Bellamy Looking Backward

It was a pleasing and not an unprofitable task for Mr. Franklin Bellamy. His imagination carried him ahead of his time, and he saw mankind enjoying the fruits of combined and grand effort

8 POINT

16 A 44 a $3 00

Facilities Intelligently Applied

Printers who look backward, while they may draw on their imaginations for profits, do not enjoy so encouraging a vision as did Bellamy. He saw improved facilities intelligently applied; achievements in art, literature and industry which were a credit to those engaged

5½ POINT GERMAN NO 32

Natur! Wir sind von ihr umgeben und umschlungen—unvermögend, aus ihr herauszutreten, und unvermögend, tiefer in sie hineinzukommen. Angebeten und ungewarnt nimmt sie uns in den Umlauf ihres Tages auf und treibt sich mit uns fort, bis wir ermüdet sind und ihrem Arme entfallen. Sie schafft ewig neue Gestalten; was da ist, war noch nie; was war, kommt nicht wieder—Jedes ist neu und doch immer das Alte. Wir leben mitten in ihr und sind ihre Freunde. Sie spricht unaufhörlich mit uns und verrät uns ihr Geheimnis nicht. Wir wirken beständig auf sie ein und haben doch keine Gewalt über sie. Große und heilige Natur! in deinen Hallen wandelt der Mensch, und lernt von Stauden und Bäumen; sein Auge ruht wie ein Hühorn am blauen Himmel, und sucht nach dem, nach welchem sich sein Herz in der Brust ausstreckt. Dann wird er selbst zum Priester dieses Tempels eingeweiht; mit Thränen preigt er andern Menschen, durch Trost, durch Mitleid und Güte.—Wer kann die unendliche Liebe die Erbtöchter des mit ihr erlöschenden Geschlechts der Cämmerer zum Gutenberg zur Gemahlin, und zeugte mit ihr zwei Söhne, Frielo und Johann, von welchen der letztere sich Johann Gensfleisch zum Gutenberg nannte, und die vereinigten Namen der beiden alten Geschlechter durch die Erfindung der Buchdrucker-kunft den spätesten Nachkommen überliefert hat.

Every character is cast on an enquad set, and only en-quads and 4-to-em spaces are used for spacing. By setting sticks to a multiple of 10 Point, spacing and justification become mere child's play. In fact, this type is self-spacing. Although the face is large, on examination it will be found that Time-Saving Mail List Type is quite as condensed on the average as ordinary Mail List Type. Price, same as for 10 Point Roman

The above Mail List Type, with Logotypes, is furnished at the regular rates of Roman letters. A complete fund for two Logotypes will reach as follows—Roman, 30 pounds; Clarendon, 6 1/2 pounds; Abbreviations, 3 1/2 pounds. Extra sorts, amounting to 20 pounds, will be required where Counties and States are added, for which a special sort-order must be sent

LAUREL ORNAMENTS

Are designed to work separately and with the Laurel Borders, shown on page 444. The wreaths may be enlarged symmetrically by using the single piece.

These Ornaments are cast in a cored type mould, with as little shoulder as possible on the inside of the wreaths, so that type lines may be set close up. A great variety of designs may be quickly and easily produced with these inexpensive ornaments.

Thorne Type-Setting

....AND....

Distributing Machine

Hundreds in use by leading Book
Printers and Newspaper Publishers in the United States,
Canada, Great Britain and Europe.

THE THORNE is the only type-setting machine which distributes its own type. The two operations may be performed simultaneously, or separately, as desired.

THE THORNE occupies very little space, runs easily and noiselessly, and is operated with slight exertion. It is simple in its mechanism and processes, and very durable.

THE THORNE reduces the cost of composition one-half,
while the quality of the work equals best hand type-setting.
THE THORNE is the only type-setting machine that has proved successful during a long period of years. Dozens of other experimental machines have been tried—the Thorne alone has stood the test of time.

Conceded to be the Best Job Press

The Gally Universal Press

M. Gally, Inventor
National Machine Co., Builders

Difficult Printing.—The finest color, cut and solid color block work, as well as embossing, can be done easily and perfectly only on this type of press, because it excels all others in strength, rigidity, register and durability, and has better distribution and facilities for extra rolling.

Ordinary Printing can be done profitably, because rapidly, with extra quick make-ready. Recent improvements make the 1897 model a Fast Press.

THE SURE WAY to do the best printing is to do it on the Best Job Press made, which, after a quarter century's experience, is conceded to be the Gally Universal Press. Several of these have been in use for nineteen years in the MacKellar, Smiths & Jordan Specimen Printing Department.
